

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

EDITORIAL.

AGAIN, after many anxious inquiries from friends as to its whereabouts, the PALLADIUM makes its yearly appearance, to create, by the contents of its significant pages, the usual ruffle upon the monotonous surface of college life — afterward to become the record of Time's changes in our busy, though circumscribed college world.

Many who greeted it upon its last visit, have since transferred their labors to the scenes of active life, and have already begun to build upon the foundation laid under the fostering guidance of our Alma Mater, and are pressing on the toilsome road to Fame and Fortune. The PALLADIUM, as an institution of the University, bids them God-speed, with hearty good will.

But many old faces still gladden our hearts, and many new ones have appeared among us, whom we welcome to these classic halls, hallowed by old memories, and dear to us from present associations. Their experience will be as ours, in here cementing friendships whose memory and influence time nor space shall obliterate. In the community of interests which here exists, and under the favorable auspices of a daily intercourse, in the sharing of each other's hopes and aspirations, we come to know each other better, and esteem each other's excellencies more, while the little failings, incidental to human nature, become only peculiarities of character, or are screened from the observation of outsiders with jealous care. The principle, "stand by your friends," is carried out to the last degree, and it is right that it should be so. The warm grasp of the hand, and the hearty salutation which encounter us, form strong and pleasant contrasts to the formal bow and the indifferent greeting of the cold, calculating world, into the arena of which we all expect soon to hurl our gauntlets, where before us, with alternately inspiring or depressing effect, loom all the uncertain issues of the conflict, involving success or defeat. Truly, these are halcyon days—days for enjoyment, but above all, days for improvement. In them we meet the Rubicon of our destiny, in them we make or mar our future; for “man is the architect of his own fortune.”

No such startling changes, as those which were agitating the college world at our last issue, have this year transpired. At that time “the memorials” had been signed pro and con, and the memorialists on both sides of the controversy were attempting to possess their souls in patience, while anxiously awaiting the decision which should be arrived at by the Regents at their next meeting. At that meeting the self-complacency of the students who had ventured to raise their feeble voices in petition, received a decided shock, and in unmistakeable terms we were counselled not to interfere in future in matters of State, implying that we should attend to our books like good boys. That was “the most unkindest cut of all” that we, who had made agonizing speeches, and who had left no art of the orator untried, whether of logic or entreaty, to win the wavering ones over to this or that opinion, while wringing of hands, and lachrymose effusions, and haggard countenances might be seen on every hand, with all the exhibitions of anxiety and restlessness supposed to attend those upon whom rest the responsibilities of empire—that we, who were achieving so much glory and renown in the exciting campaign, should be “laid upon the table,” with a probability, amounting to certainty, of remaining forever thereafter in that recumbent position—it was too much; we were disgusted, we were very emetically inclined. The Freshmen, who had been entirely ignored, as having no part nor lot in the matter, alone escaped, and thought “where ignorance is bliss, ’tis folly to be wise.” However, after earnest solicitations from prominent citizens for an authoritative expression of the sentiment of the Board upon the mooted question, the Regents declared as their opinion, that it was not deemed advisable that any changes should be made in the acting government of the University, and so the matter was settled. Many were gratified, and the many disappointed ones submitted with as much grace as possible, while the students, relieved of the intense and baneful excitement attending the discussion of the question, prepared to apply with renewed vigor and less divided attention to their scholarly pursuits, which began again to recover the interest which for the time they had lost. The excitement was natural—nay, inevitable—but yet injurious to us as scholars, and the less such distracting elements are encountered in a course of study, the better.

The evidences of the constantly increasing prosperity of the University are this year unmisakeable, whether we consider the number of students, or the interest witnessed in the recitation rooms. In the Literary Department the older classes retain their numerical strength, while the Freshman class is unusually large. It is a noticeable fact, that the Scientific Department is rapidly rising in favor with the public. The advantages here presented for such a course of study are superior to those of any other institution in the land, but until recently, the proportion of Scientific students has been comparatively insignificant. Soon, however, a balance of power will be necessary, should collisions arise in the halls between the rival sections. In the light of present prospects, the Scientifics will be able to oppose a formidable resistance to the ambitious assumptions of their classical brethren.

Hard work, and plenty of it, is apparently the order of things—especially among the Seniors is there “wailing and gnashing of teeth.” That Tacitus, Hickok, and Douai, should attempt to force their accumulated wisdom upon the comprehension of a single mind in one semester, reminds us of old jokes about “midnight oil.” If any deluded Freshman is cherishing fond hopes of “the good time coming,” let him banish the pleasing delusion, and “smoke his pipe, and sing his glees,” while he may.

The new library room has been opened in the Law building, and furnishes an attractive resort for investigating minds. It appears to be well arranged, and completely adapted for its purpose. It is open for the accommodation of students in the evening as well as during the day time—a marked improvement upon the old system. Prof. TEN BROOK, having returned from Europe, now occupies the position of librarian. It may be a matter of interest to some that Bohn's Classical Library, complete, has lately been purchased and placed in the library. Such a want has long been felt. We are informed that quite a large number of these translations are soon to be offered for sale by the librarian, by reason of the accumulation of duplicates in the library.

The “new bell” is a failure. It appears to possess all the attributes of a bell, except the indispensable one of sound, and all its attempts to produce an audible tone having proved abortive, it has been abandoned in despair. It is to be returned, however, and another one has been ordered, which is expected daily. The steward wishes it generally understood among the interested parties, that a handsome sum could be realized from the sale of the old bell, which was so unceremoniously deposed and hurried away into retirement. He still lives in hope that, like the Faculty books, it will be "left" in some convenient place. By the recent fire at the Smithsonian Institute, the celebrated Stanley paintings were nearly all consumed. Although their purchase was by no means certain, yet there was a probability that the University would soon be the proud possessor of these works of art. Under the circumstances, their loss must excite a peculiar regret on the part of the friends of the University.

In accordance with an arrangement which has been perfected, Prof. A. B. PALMER, of the Medical Faculty, delivers to the Literary students a course of lectures on Physiology and Hygiene, extending through the entire year. These lectures now constitute a portion of the regular curriculum of study. Judging from the eminent qualifications of the lecturer for imparting instruction in this branch of study, as well as from the general satisfaction expressed by those who have attended the course thus far, the lectures cannot fail to be in the highest degree profitable and interesting. Prof. WHITE has also this winter delivered his course of lectures on History, to the Senior class.

We are pleased to learn that "Class Day," a time-honored holiday in many of our Eastern institutions, is from this year forward, to be observed among us, with appropriate ceremonies. The literary exercises of the Senior class, instead of occurring during commencement week, as heretofore, will under the new arrangement take place at the close of their study term—the first of June. On that day the regular college labors will be suspended. The exercises of the day are not to be conducted exclusively by the class, but will consist in part of orations, or addresses, from members of the Faculty, in addition to the regular appointments of the class. From the representations of those familiar with the custom, we are led to believe that the annual recurrence of this day will be looked forward to with great interest.

At this writing, preparations are in progress for the celebration of the twenty-second of February by the three departments, in a manner correspondent with the reputation of the University and the usual enterprising spirit of its students.

The Law Department shares in the general prosperity of the University. The number of students is greatly increased. The general idea is that "when this cruel war is over" it will be a good time for lawyers. Our impression is that will be a good time for lawsuits.

During the last year, the Medical Department, having outgrown its accommodations, a new building has been added, of tasteful construction and imposing appearance, sixty feet square, of two high stories, and a basement, furnishing two lecture rooms of the whole size of the building, each arranged for seating nearly five hundred persons, and capable of having additional seats constructed for at least one hundred more. The part of the former building occupied by lecture rooms has been remodeled—the amphitheatre into a magnificent dissecting room, and the lower stories for patients, extension of the museum, laboratory, etc. The whole building gives the greatest satisfaction to occupants, and is regarded by competent judges, as the finest and most convenient Medical college building in the country. The improvement was effected at an expense of $25,000, of which $10,000 was furnished by the city of Ann Arbor. The building was opened with an appropriate address from the President of the University, on the first of October, and the students in the department, under the zealous management of its Faculty, have reached the unprecedented number of four hundred and fifteen. It is confidently stated that in no Medical college in the country do Practical Anatomy and Practical Chemistry receive so much attention from students as here; indeed, the facilities are unrivalled. The other branches in the department are pursued with equal zeal and interest. On the whole, the Medical college may be said to be on the crest of the wave of success.

We are gratified at being able to present to the readers of the PALLADIUM two college songs, which are distinctively Ann Arbor songs. The pecuniary inducement, added to the honor of a successful competition, induced a number to enter the lists, and a variety of talent truly surprising, has been disclosed, which does honor to the unknown possessors, and the University of which ~~they form a~~ part. We hope that the interest which has been awakened upon this subject will not wholly disappear, and that it may not be long before we may boast of ~~many~~ songs peculiarly our own. And here we wish to express our indebtedness to President HAVEN, and Professors FRIEZE and EVANS, for their sympathy and cordial co-operation in this undertaking. In assuming the unenviable task of passing judgment upon the respective efforts of the competitors, and designating the successful poems, they have exhibited the same interest in the welfare of the students, which has always characterized them.

From the contents of this number of the PALLADIUM it will be seen that although the temple of Janus still remains open, though the glimmerings of peace are faint and far distant, yet the country is alive to her educational interests, and the coming generation will not be wanting in strong and cultivated minds, many of whom will shine in the already studded crown of our own Alma Mater.

In Memoriam.

THE PALLADIUM, which again greets its friends and patrons, showing on every page an increase in prosperity, tells also its sad tale of sorrow and affliction. It shows that our Alma Mater has been neither indifferent, nor inactive, in the affairs which are determining the safety or ruin of our nation; for she has sent many of her noblest sons to fight for the sacred institutions of our country, and for some of those, who within the past year have fallen the victims of war, she now sadly mourns.

The gallant BUHL, of the class of '64, fell, mortally wounded, while charging the enemy with that lofty daring which has its birth only in the soul of the true patriot.

Of the class of '65, AINSWORTH, PHELPS, and WOODRUFF, have been added to that illustrious band of departed heroes, who have won a nation's undying gratitude and remembrance.

Of the class of '66, ADAMS, BUTLER, and KELLEY, have offered up their lives, and now sleep in patriots' graves, than which earth offers no prouder resting-place, death no brighter portal to another life.

Though proud of them in the glorious cause for which they fought and died, yet when we consider their youthful lives, bright with future promise, cheerfully laid upon the altar of their nation, for their nation's welfare, we weep to think that hearts animated by such lofty principles have ceased to beat; that souls fired by such noble impulses are no longer among us, constantly to shed their influence upon us.

Theirs is an example which may ever be presented as worthy of the closest imitation. The man who undergoes every conceivable hardship for his country—enduring patiently cold, hunger, imprisonment, and finally a death full of suffering and agony, displays humanity in its sublimest phase; for in him we see the embodiment of every virtue to which man can attain.

Such were our fallen brothers. Upon the monuments which, in memory, our hearts have reared to them, let there be inscribed,—

"Semper honor et nomen laudesque manebunt."

[A prize of ten dollars was offered by the editors of the present number of the PALLADIUM for the best original college song. From among those presented, the two following were selected, as being of equal merit. — Eds.]

SONG FOR THE UNIVERSITY.

By ARTHUR H. SNOW, '66.

AIR — "Marseilles Hymn."

Come, jolly boys, and lift your voices,
Ring out, ring out, one hearty song;
Praise her, in whom each son rejoices,
And let the notes be loud and long.
'Tis Alma Mater wakes the spirit,
And prompts the strain of harmony —
Oh, sing to her triumphantly!
The glorious theme — do ye not hear it?

Chorus — Hurrah! Hurrah! ye sons

By Alma Mater blest!

All hail! All hail! her honored name,

The pride of all the West!

A thousand tongues, to swell the chorus,
Shall proudly join with us to-day;
While thousands more, who've gone before us,
Will gladly echo back the lay:
And many lands shall know the glory
That crowns the brow of Michigan,
And greet the light in Learning's van,
The fair Ann Arbor, rich in story.

Chorus — Hurrah! Hurrah! etc.

So, now our friends are hither turning
An anxious and expectant eye:
Are we, all base ambition spurning,
On fire with aspirations high?
Oh, earnestly the world is pleading
For men of strong and valiant soul, —
Then let us strive for honor's goal,
Our country's youth in triumph leading.

Chorus — Hurrah! Hurrah! etc.

By Alma Mater's precepts guided,
 We'll boldly tread life's rugged way;
 Nor faint, nor falter, though derided,
 Or foes our course should wish to stay:
 And in our hearts shall perish never
 Our love for her, whose halls we've trod,—
 Her praise we'll sing till 'neath the sod
 Our voice is silent and forever.

Chorus — Hurrah! Hurrah! etc.

OUR COLLEGE HOME.

By JAMES K. BLISH, '66.

---

AIR — "Upidee."

Come, throw your busy cares away,
 And join us in our cheerful lay;
 With many voices we'll prolong
 The accents of our fav'rite song —
 Of Upidee, etc.

Our University for fun,
 She wins the love of every son,
 And while our joyful hearts beat high,
 We'll send our chorus to the sky —
 Of Upidee, etc.

The poorest lad within the land
 Receives the favors of her hand,
 And those who come unto her door,
 Will sing her praises evermore —
 In Upidee, etc.

The memories that linger here,
 Shall ever live, our souls to choer;
 The very stars will brighter shine,
 When linked with thoughts of thee and thine —
 In Upidee, etc.

EDITORIAL.

SINCE the last publication of the PALLADIUM, radical changes have been wrought, great events have transpired in the nation, which have had not a little influence upon our University.

"Grim visaged War," which spread its horrors over our land, and brought woe and misery upon thousands of its people, has ceased its dreadful carnage. For four years the direful monster raged, and preyed dreadfully upon the vitals of the nation. Often did the patriot's pulse beat faintly, often did our country's liberty seem near its setting. But, by the blessing of God, those horrible crimes and hideous spectacles, at which the heart sickens and humanity revolts, are ended. Once more has it been proven, that "truth is mighty and will prevail." Peace and, what is better than peace, purity, are ours. Indeed, this is the most sublime epoch in our nation's history. The revolutionary struggle gave birth to a century of unprecedented activity and progress. The rebellion has wiped away the remaining evils, has purged the nation, and it is now as free and pure as the air we breath. A bright and glorious future looms up before us. No longer shall one part of the nation stifle the efforts of the other, and tear down what it has built up; no longer shall petty aims engage attention, but the whole people, from sea to sea, from North to South, acting in unison, will march on in the track of civilization. Already do the oppressed of all nations look to us for help, and from our land will go forth the fires of universal freedom. To this great and goodly end intelligence must lead us. Superficiality and affectation will not suffice; there must be profound knowledge and deep research. And among the numerous institutions of learning in our land, none offers more inducements and better advantages than our own Alma Mater. But, companions, it depends upon us, whether we will improve the golden opportunities or not, whether or not we will aid in this great work. No period of a young man's life is so important and critical as his years at college. Here is the turning point to future prosperity and usefulness, or to oblivion, nay, perhaps to a dark and gloomy life of profligacy and disgrace. Here is formed the character, here is shaped the course that will follow him through life, yea, even to eternity. To a young man idleness is the worst crime, while it is the greatest and the foundation of all other evils; vice and corruption of every description are its inevitable attendants. Labor is the greatest of virtues. It shields him from all evils, it gives him pre-eminence, and creates in him a laudable ambition. As labor has effected the scene of all our glories, the sum of all our achievements, every thing which art has accomplished, which science has exhumed from the depths of oblivious darkness, which embellishes our abodes, and animates us to still greater efforts in the cause of man and mind; so, without labor, arts, science, civilization, refinement and religion must perish. It is folly to suppose that there can be excellence without labor.

"Honor and fame from no condition rise

Act well your part, there all the honor lies."

The progress of the University has ever been constant and rapid. Each year has witnessed important changes and improvements, until, in a comparatively short time, it has grown to be the first institution of learning in the West, and among the first in rank in our land. This year its prosperity is unabated. Many who went forth to fight the battles of our country, have returned to their accustomed toils. While many others, who were unknown to us before, have proved themselves as strenuous in the pursuits of education as they were valiant in war. In consequence of this addition, the number in all the departments has been greatly increased.

The Museum is continually receiving additions. Room has been reserved for the reception of trophies, relics, and other vestiges of the rebellion. This department of the Museum will doubtless be very valuable and not the least interesting. DR. CARL ROMINGER also is at the present time engaged in making collections for the geological cabinet.

The General Library contains nearly fourteen thousand volumes, exclusive of periodicals, and an annual amount is appropriated for its enlargement. It seems to have been selected with great care and judgment. Indeed, it would be difficult to find a library of its size, so various and rich in valuable works. Since its removal to the Law Building, it has become the common resort of the student, not only as a place where he may accommodate himself with choice literature, but as a place for study. We understand that Judge Fletcher, of Boston, intends to bequeath to the University his entire law library, consisting of about eight hundred volumes, which would be very valuable, as they are principally older editions than those in the library of the Law Department.

The Literary Department especially seems imbued with fresh vigor. Both professors and students engage in their work with earnestness, but especially the professors. The requisite for admission to both Classical and Scientific courses is greater, while the curriculum of study is much increased. This year, by way of an addition, President HAVEN delivers a course of lectures on Political Economy and Logic to the Senior Class. The course of instruction in Elocution has been extended; and the Sophomores find that they have a "hard road to travel" and not much time for "smoking out Freshmen." Perhaps Prof. OLNEY's "Syllabus" will give them some relief. We mention with pleasure that ADAM K. SPENCE, CHARLES K. ADAMS, and ALLEN J. CURTIS, who were formerly instructors, have each been made Assistant Professors, for the goodly services they have rendered the University. We notice that WILLIAM B. MORGAN has been received into the University as an instructor in Mathematics; we can only hope that he will prove worthy the favor of him who fills that chair so well.

In the Law Department, ASHLEY POND, Esq., of Detroit, has been added to the Faculty, with the title of Fletcher Professor of Law. The number of students has increased more in proportion in this Department than in either of the other two; many of whom wear "blue coats" with "brass buttons," from which circumstance we would suppose that they have migrated from the South.

The Medical Department shares in the common prosperity. No changes have been made in it during the past year. The "dicks," we understand, have to labor night and day. The "limbs" may pity them, but we can only sympathize with them. It is expected that a course in Dentistry, including Dental Hygiene and Mechanical Dentistry, will ere long be established. We may also, with reason, hope to have a School of Agriculture. Doubtless it would add much to the prosperity of the State. While, if it be expedient to establish such a School, here it can be established easier, and here it will be surrounded with more conveniences than in any other place.

The Alumni have taken steps to procure a fund for the erection of a building on the College grounds, as a Memorial or Monumental Building to those who went forth from the University at their country's call. This building is to be used as a Chapel for the University. The plan adopted for raising the fund, is for each Alumnus to raise one hundred dollars. One man has pledged five thousand dollars; and other amounts have been pledged by others. It is hoped that fifty thousand dollars will be obtained, which sum will be sufficient to erect a structure that will be an honor, not only to the University, but to the whole State. The corner stone of this building is to be laid next Commencement.

A subscription paper is in circulation, among the students, for purchasing an organ for the Chapel. This we think will add much to Chapel exercises, and by rendering them more pleasant, will dispense with the customary roll-call on Monday morning.

With this imperfect introduction, the PALLADIUM presents its humble attractions to its friends and patrons. Hoping that it will keep pace with the University in its onward march, and with every wish for the prosperity, peace, and honor of our fair and majestic Alma Mater, it submits its pages.

In Memoriam.

ANOTHER YEAR has come and gone, with its attendant joys and woes. The dread voice of war is heard no more in the land. Swords are beaten into ploughshares and spears into pruning hooks. Although many, alas! at their country's call, have yielded up their lives, a willing sacrifice, amid the smoke and din of battle, at home, in the hospital, and in the prison-pens of the enemy, we can but be thankful that our Alma Mater has no more names to entwine in the wreath of victory. The memories of those that have fallen shall ever be dear to us, and with one accord will we raise our voices

"With honor, honor, honor to them,

Eternal honor to their names."

Yet the angel of death is, as ever, busy, and his pathway has been through our midst. Upon the shoulders of two of our number has his hand been laid, and they have gone at his bidding. HENRY H. KIRBY, of the Sophomore Class, who, after the absence of a year, had returned to finish his course, was suddenly stricken down in the strength of manhood. He had scarcely been missed from the class room, when we were called to mourn his death. Equally unexpected was the death of EDMUND E. BRUSH, of the Freshman Class. Feeling slightly ill, he had gone home to recruit his health, when the sad intelligence was suddenly announced to us that he was no more. Deeply do we mourn their loss, for we knew their worth. Although but a short time among us, yet by their gentlemanly conduct and scholarly attainments they had won a place in the hearts of all.

Mehr-beer Society.

This Establishment does not advertise in the New York Herald.

THIS Society, originally established by MEHR-BEER himself, but, since his premature, untimely, unexpected, and fatal death suddenly terminated his earthly career, carried on under the management of his brother, the celebrated Impressario, LAGER BEER, and his son, ZWEI BEER, after having appeared with unparalleled success before the elite in the principal towns and villages of the United States and New Jersey, has the honor respectfully to announce to the pleasure-loving citizens of Ann Arbor that it will appear nightly at the Academy of Music in its favorite slaughter of L'Africaine, with the following irreproachable cast:

Ye Garçon who always sees six on the balls.
 Herr Schweitzer, the renowned puller of door bells at 2 A. M.
 Ye man who seldom drinks except just about this time of night.
 Ye man who understands "this little American game."
 Ye man who always sings "Tom Moore" at 11 o'clock precisely.
 Ye man who always takes "appetite."
 Ye man whose stomach always goes back on him.
 Ye man who "shall always think so."
 Ye twenty glass individual, who don't believe in making a hog of himself because he knows how.

The proceeds of L'Africaine to be devoted to the purchase of Freedmen's Bureaus

Africans and Medics admitted at half price.

The proprietors regret to announce that they have been deprived of some of their most brilliant stars, who have lately joined the Cold Water Society.

QUODLIBET.

BY JAMES K. BLISH, '66.

AIR—"The Captain with his Whiskers."

'Tis September's golden month, when the opening is at hand,
 That we watch the trains and registers, to see the Freshmen land.
 There is stumpy Fresh and seedy Fresh, and Freshies short and tall,
 The Freshman with the goggles, and the Fresh who wears a shawl.
 Some are hopeful, some despondent, and a very knowing one
 Asks you if it is a fact that the Prex now weighs a ton.
 Oh, they all are model boys, study hard the whole day long,
 Always go to chapel regular, and sing this little song:

"Oh, that will be joyful,
 Joyful, joyful,
 Oh, that will be joyful,
 When young men sin no more."

When they rise to mighty Sophs, (such a change I grieve to tell),
 But their highest aspiration is to steal the chapel bell.
 Then they push upon the stairs, get some plugs and cut a swell,
 Singing "saw the Freshman's leg off;" as loud as they can yell.
 Then they buy some big meerschaums just to pass away the time,
 Which they try to make you think came from "Bingen on the Rhine."
 Oh, you ought to see his whiskers, just thirteen in the pair,
 Which he strokes so very gently, while he sings his favorite air:

"When nothing else is near, sir,
 We take a noggin of beer, sir,
 'T will make you feel so queer, sir,
 And drive dull care away."

What romantic chaps they are, when they get their Junior boost,
 And they tell of strange adventures, pulling turkeys from the roost;
 Form some very strong attachments, and escort the girls about,
 So they'll get a nice bouquet when they make their Junior spout.
 Oh, it would not be so strange, as perhaps it might be sad,
 If a letter from the Faculty should chance to reach their Dad.
 Then he spends his whole vacation, which ends, alas, too soon,
 Trifling with the girls' affections by the singing of this tune:

"Maid of Athens, ere we part,
 Give, oh, give me back my heart."

But now that they are Seniors, mark their philosophic air,
When they "say their say" in chapel, and make the Freshmen stare,
And they sport a beard besides, just as every Senior should,
Think that billiards are consistent with their "spirit's highest good."
Oh, they smoke and take their ease, while they talk of moral law,
Und sie trinken starkes Bier wann Niemand sieht sie, ja.
Then Commencement comes at last, which they've waited for so long,
And with sheepskins in their pockets safe they sing the parting song :
    "Rolling home, rolling home, rolling home, boys,
    Rolling home, rolling home, rolling home, boys,
    And happy is the maid that shall meet us,
    As we go rolling home."

Salutatio.

Another year has elapsed, and THE PALLADIUM again greets its patrons—not with a profound and labored preparatory “bow,” dignified in former times by the name of an “editorial,”—but with the fewest possible, (though no less heartfelt) words of gratulation for their and its own prosperity. Upon its pages will be found all those “items” which are usually employed in swelling out a wordy introduction, though in a less prolix and—according to the ideas of the present conductors—in quite as interesting form. The prosperity of our Alma Mater, in her different departments, may be seen in the steadily increasing numbers of those who would become her children, while the needs and disadvantages under which she labors in supplying their “hungerings and thirstings” after knowledge, our worthy Chancellor has fully explained. The accessions which have occurred during the year to the different Faculties, will be found in their appropriate places, without expiating upon peculiarities of fitness or qualification. The compilers of THE PALLADIUM congratulate its patrons and readers upon the improvements which mark its appearance, both in respect to its increased amount of new matter, as well as the fine style of its mechanical execution. The beauty and truthfulness of the splendid engraving, which stands opposite the title page, the superior binding—in short, the “tout ensemble” of our publication, we are confident, will be appreciated. Hoping that these anticipations may be realized, we place THE PALLADIUM before you, trusting that whatever “errata” may appear will be kindly overlooked.

In Memoriam.

---

Again the hand of the Destroyer has been laid upon us, and Alma Mater has been called to mourn the loss of two of her sons.

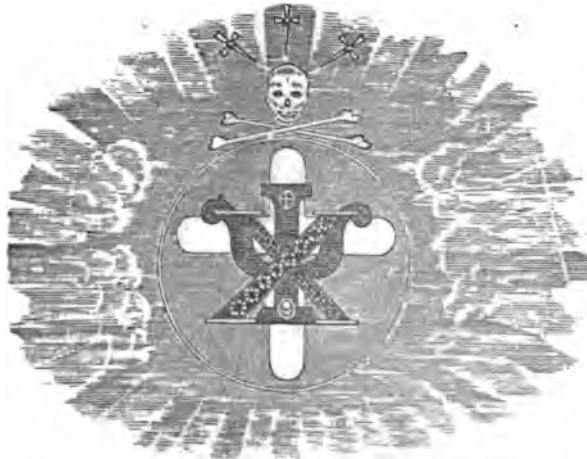

January 25th, 1866, SCHUYLER H. WILLIAMS, of the Class of 1867, after a most painful illness of a few days, closed his career among us.

His nobleness needs no panegyric. His power of intellect was equalled only by his generosity of heart. None knew him but most sincerely mourned his death. In class-room and in the social circle, there is a blank that never can be filled. Yet we, his classmates and friends, will ever cherish his example and remembrance. We lamented him, yet he has but left sorrow for eternal joy. In his own words, he has but "changed this for a better and higher course."

The death of NATHAN F. MOREHOUSE, of the same class, has left a vacancy deeply felt by his fellow laborers in the cause of Christ. His life was a continued example of Christian piety. He had destined himself for the Ministry, and had entered the University to fit himself for that profession. His zeal in the cause led him to overtask his strength and thus hasten his end.

Thus it is our sad duty to add two more to the list of those who have gone before us. May they prove to us a warning of the inscrutable ways of Providence, that spares neither the youth nor the strong man.

The united fraternity of the "Peculiar Persons" and the "Sons of Malt," under the common name of the "Heroes of the Circular Table"; a resplendent and eupeptic galaxy of genius sparkling with wit and glowing with health, culled from the class of '68, after many meetings held in the interest of "pure mathematics," has given to the world the solution of the most obtruse problem of the age, viz: "Squaring of the circle," by snatching a "square meal" from their "circular table."

Among its members there are none who has not shone the feted hero of festive board or midnight foray wild.

Here comes the tug 'twixt mind and matter,
 Let '70 be our battle cry—
 The tall "holt's" good, so let her squeal,
 We're bound to suck "root pig or die."
 Of nourishment for Freshmen meet
 Our Alma Mater's breast is dry,
 But sons of '70 never fret
 Here is for "Fresh" a fresh supply.

FRESHMAN CHORUS,

Composed by the Poet of '70, and arranged to the tune of Benny Havens,

BY PROF. BASSINI.

Let others dream of Latin, Greek,
 And all such classic lore,
 But give to us a porcus dug,
 We'll drink forevermore.

The University.

It is now twenty-three (23) years since the first Catalogue of the Officers and Students of the University of Michigan, in the Department of Arts and Sciences, 1843-4, was published. It contained the names of five (5) Professors and one (1) Tutor. Among them was the name of Dr. Douglass Houghton, never to be forgotten in Michigan. Eminent for his scientific attainments, beloved for his amiability and integrity, he first brought to light many of the mineral resources of this State, and was a firm advocate of the highest education. A county embracing the richest copper region of the Upper Peninsula, bears his name, and also the most flourishing village in that wonderful and growing section of the State. He was drowned in Lake Superior in 1845, while prosecuting a geological survey of the State. Appropriate to him are the words of Milton upon his lamented Lycidas :

"Sunk though he be beneath the watery floor:
So sinks the day-star in the ocean-bed,
And yet anon repairs his drooping head,
And tricks his beam, and with new-spangled ore
Flames in the forehead of the morning sky."

Another name on the list is Rev. Dr. Edward Thompson, who still lives and occupies an eminent ecclesiastical position. Neither of these men, though their names were among the first faculty, ever actually performed any duties as Professors here, though they gave their counsel and influence in the foundation of this University. Another name is Rev. Joseph Whiting, A. M., who died in 1845, whose eminent services and Christian character are fittingly expressed in the inscription to his memory on the cenotaph in the University grounds, near the Medical building. The other two names have been on every succeeding catalogue, and alas for the day when the star against these names shall indicate that the University has been deprived of their counsel and instruction. Rev. George P. Williams, LL. D., then simply A. M., was Professor of Natural Philosophy; and Abram Sager, M. D., was then Professor of Zoology and Botany. There was then no Senior class, but a Junior class of eleven (11), and a Sophomore class of nineteen (19), and a Freshmen class of twenty-three (23)—all pursuing the classical course of study. Among them are some who have since attained high positions in Church and State. Michigan was then nearly all a wilderness; indeed a large part of its territory is still in its primitive condition, but the Southern half of the Lower Peninsula has the aspect of an old State; and if one half of the projected railways are completed, in addition to what we already have, the map will be "grid-ironed" as closely as that of Eastern Massachusetts.

The University, though reputable from the beginning, was at first a College scarcely more than a "cottage in the wilderness;" but soon the Department of Medicine and Surgery was added, and still later the Department of Law ; and the original Department of Science, Literature and the Arts blossomed into a kind of congeries of independent Colleges, all connected together and growing from one stock. They would be called elsewhere, perhaps, a Classical College, a College of Science and Mathematics, a School of Civil Engineering, a School of Chemistry, a School of Mines, etc., etc. ; but here, according to a natural system, the various broad avenues in which different minds are inclined to travel, are so connected and intersected by crosspaths and numerous winding by-ways, as to form a kind of moving city, and very eccentric must be the taste of the youth who cannot find what he desires, or at least what he needs, in this University.

This liberal foundation of the University is the result of a law of the State, enacted in 1851, which completely reorganized the government of the University, and infused into it new life. The last year has been steadily and uniformly prosperous. The number of students in the regular courses of study is considerably larger than heretofore, and taken together with others, and with the Medical and Law Students, constitute the largest body of men gathered together in any University in America.

Scattered though we are through the city in our various temporary homes, we are still often together ; and though no one audience room in the College buildings can accommodate us all at once, we become familiar, at least, with each others appearance, and many are the warm intimacies and life-long friendships here formed.

Various associations naturally spring up by which those of kindred tastes may promote such intimacy and help each other, without injuring or neglecting their fellow-students. To those who are suspicious of evil, we suggest the well-known royal maxim, Honi soit qui mal pense, and would also remind them that what, in the hands of the vicious may be productive of mischief, in the hands of the virtuous may be productive of good.

To those in other Colleges and Universities throughout the land, we send our warm greetings. Happy united States, once more united : may the Union soon be hearty and never be sundered. Let the students in North and South, East and West, so soon to be actively engaged together as men, overlook and despise those feuds that would divide us into hostile bands, and endeavor rather, by healthful emulation, to encourage each other in the one common enterprise of developing the resources of our young nation in money, muscle, mind and merit, to their greatest possible extent.

The Literary Societies.

It is proposed to re-organize the Literary Societies of the University, and to introduce some new feature which, it is believed, will greatly increase their interest and efficiency. After the present academical year, there will be prize orations for the Senior Class, and prize debates for the Sophomore and Junior classes. It is to be hoped, also, that a fuller recognition of these societies by the authorities of the University will tend to produce a more earnest exercise of their duties and privileges by the members, while the introduction of prizes will, naturally, stimulate speakers to greater effort, and listeners to keener criticism. Certainly the object in view is worthy of every exertion that can be put forth to attain it. The debating society is to the mind what gymnastics are to the body—an admirable means for promoting the most useful discipline, and securing the completest development. And as in youth the body is more easily subjected to the will than in maturer years, so while thought is pliant and the imagination active, the mind readily shapes its workings to those ideals of grace and strength in language which constitute true eloquence.

Also, the habit of speaking in public is of the greatest benefit in correcting mannerisms, and in giving the speaker that self-command and repose which so greatly assist the evolution of sustained and culminating thought. Its advantages are by no means confined to the so-called learned professions. Many a man, who, amidst the responsibilities of active life, has a worthy message to deliver, fails in impressing the people with its importance, through lack of that early training which would have taught him to arrange his ideas in a manner calculated to produce the strongest effect, and to clothe them in suitable words: another shall steal the hearts of the people through the beauty of his language and the charm of his manner; while he who possesses at once honesty of purpose in a good cause, and mental powers under complete training, is sure to be a leader and helper in the advancement of the multitudes whom he sways at his will.

The originators of this new scheme have shown wisdom in establishing debates for the Junior and Sophomore classes, and requiring orations from the Seniors. For while the speaker in a general debate has need of all the keenness of perception and solidity of argument that he can display, he is yet obliged to sustain only one side of a question; his strength may all be concentrated upon a single view of any topic. This, therefore, is the right school for beginners in oratory, preparing the pupil for the more finished labor of the oration, wherein a subject must be presented in all its bearings, and provision be made for the different opinions and opposing suggestions of a variety of hearers.

Such exercises among young men who are pursuing a liberal and classical course of study may be made a very different thing from the lyceum discussions of school boys and apprentices. All the refining influences of education lend their aid to make pleasant and persuasive the scholar's spoken thought ; and familiarity with the best models of eloquence in ancient and modern times teaches him what to seek and what to shun, in the formation of his style. The higher the degree of culture, the more evident does it appear that the best rule for expression, whether by voice or pen, is to declare the idea in as few and simple words as possible. Brevity and directness are the secret of strength. Their influence tells upon both learned and unlettered men, though only the learned are able to appreciate the effort and the practice which have resulted in such excellent skill.

The wide spread of knowledge in these days, and the rapid progress indicated for the future, make it incumbent upon every man, who would leave the impress of his convictions upon his generation, to employ every means of enlarging and cultivating his mental resources. The time has gone by when preachers could boast of their ignorance with a chance of sympathy and applause from their congregations ; and few, and remote from the influences of the age, are those parents who are indifferent to the educational needs of their children. Every speaker, henceforth, is sure to find an intelligent audience, capable of testing his positions, and of criticising, to some extent, at least, his manner of presenting them.

And what a noble field is now lying open for the orator, in the great questions which have been called up by the exigencies of the times, and in which are contained alike the greatest dangers and the highest advantages of our future as a nation. The increasing liberty of religious thought, and the intimate connection between righteousness and good government, now beginning to be apparent to all minds ; the various disturbances in the social system, which already demonstrate the necessity of more enlightened opinion and wiser legislation on many points ; the increased interest given to political matters by our own recent experience of war, and the unsettled condition of foreign powers—in a word, the fresh and vigorous struggle for freedom which is agitating the whole world in every department of thought and action, is surely a sufficient incentive to the youth of this age to acquire every art and grace that make them fitter exponents of the best public sentiment, and more faithful guides to the still greater achievements in knowledge and true patriotism.

Parting Song
OF THE CLASS OF '68,

BY RICHARD. S. DEWEY.

---

- 1 Classmates! now, before we part,
Let strains that echo from the heart,
Unite our voices to proclaim,
Our loves, our hopes, for aye the same.

Chorus.—O, "Sixty Eight" for ever!
There's naught our class can sever;
Hand in hand, once more we vow,
Ever "Sixty Eight" as now.

- 2 Often, when in future years,
Thoughts of the past shall move to tears,
In those bright drops we'll consecrate,
The memory of "Sixty Eight."

Chorus.

- 3 Our college days have shown full well,
How pleasures often cares dispel,
Our studies done, our laurels won,
Stern duty oft' will yield to fun.

Chorus.

- 4 And now with cheers both loud and long,
We'll raise our final farewell song,
And heartily vociferate,
The praises of old "Sixty Eight."

Chorus.

Salutatio.

---

IN presenting to its patrons the present volume of the PALLADIUM its compilers deem it unnecessary to preface their labor with any extended remarks, feeling conscious as they do that such a publication is to be appreciated for what it is rather than for what it may assume to be. In the discharge of their duty they have endeavored to bear in mind that the PALLADIUM is designed for the recording of facts, and if to any the pages of this number, like those of previous numbers, appear dull and monotonous on account of their long lists of names and general statistical appearance, it should be remembered that they are not intended to supply the place of a literary journal or family almanac, but that each successive volume is very like all the preceding in consequence of the fact that college history is annually repeating itself. To state that the prosperity of our Alma Mater continues unabated would be simply a work of supererogation, since in attestation of the fact almost every page of this publication sparkles with evidences weightier than words. Without pausing to enlarge on the merits of new professors or expatiating on the propriety of the students' having entered so largely into the journalistic department of literature, we now place the PALLADIUM before the alumni and undergraduates of the University, trusting that the pleasing reminiscences which it will awaken in the minds of those who have left us, and the common feelings of sympathy which so generally prevail among members of the same institution, will operate efficiently in its behalf, causing it to be received with kindness and criticised with moderation.

In Memoriam.

The just and farseeing wisdom of our Heavenly Father has removed from our midst Moss F. PALMER, of the class of '69, and deprived us of a warm friend and able fellow student, thus darkening a light of promise on earth only that it may glow more brightly in Heaven.

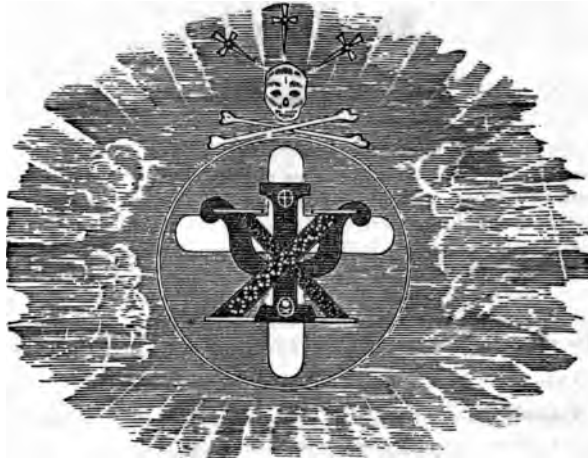

Deeply feeling his loss, we will long cherish the remembrance of his many virtues, his well known abilities as a scholar, his modest and unassuming deportment and that confiding friendship which is never chilled by death. While we mourn his sudden death, it is a source of consolation to know that he died with the hope of eternal life and trusting in the mercy of his Saviour

The New Year, with all its joys, brought sorrow to our hearts. We can never call to mind January 1, 1868, without feelings of sadness. On that day another of our number, JOHN H. AUSTIN, was called away from earth. We had known him but a short time, yet, so deep was the impression his many excellencies had made on our hearts, his remembrance will be preserved as that of a long tried and trusted friend. An industrious and careful student, a genial and affable companion, he won for himself the admiration and respect both of instructors and fellow students. His death to us is a severe affliction, but for him we believe it has gained an intelligence far greater than any to be acquired here.

Societies in Harvard.

THE Societies in Harvard College are fewer in number, and have less influence upon the opinion and character of the students, than those in any other of the principal American Colleges. There is no general division of the students, as at Yale and Brown and in the Michigan University, between two great literary societies, and no haste to secure Freshmen when they enter College, for one or another rival fraternity. After the college rebellion of 1834, the formation of new secret societies was prohibited, and the few that have come up since that time are branches of societies formed in other colleges, and make no show either by wearing badges or in the announcement of meetings, and some students in every class pass through the college course without belonging to any society whatever.

The oldest Society in the College is the Institute of 1770, which in three years from this time ought to celebrate its 100th anniversary. This Society is (or was, a few years ago) confined to the Freshman and Sophomore classes. After the Sophomore year, the members were not expected to take part in the debates and lectures, though they were allowed to attend the fortnightly meetings, and to take books from the Library. At each of the meetings an essay was read, and a discussion held; and at the end of every term, there was an oration and poem by members of the Society. Thirty years ago the Library of the Institute numbered about 2200 volumes. It is probably twice as large at the present time. Its books were of a popular kind, and were constantly in use.

Next in age to the Institute, is the famous Society of Phi Beta Kappa; this was founded in the year 1781, with a charter given from William and Mary College in Virginia. The original Virginian Society long since died, and the Harvard Chapter is the Alpha of America, and has granted charters to all the branches of the Society in other Colleges. Originally it was a literary society of undergraduates, and had frequent meetings. But for forty years and more, its undergraduate meetings have only been meetings of business, and its literary exercises have been confined to a single day in the Summer. The legends on the medal indicate the purpose of the Society. The "P. B. K," signify "Philosophy, the guide of life;" Philosophia Biou Kubernetes,—and the "S. P.," on the opposite side of the medal, Societas Philosophica. Until the year 1829 it was strictly a secret Society, with a peculiar grip, password, and knock for the door. But in the Anti-Masonic excitement of that time, the secrets were revealed; and though the ceremony of initiation is still kept up, there is no injunction of secrecy. To each one of the initiated a silver medal is given, and pink and blue ribbons, worn in the button hole, are the badge of membership. No Society in the land can show on its catalogue so remarkable a list of distinguished names in the State and the Church, in Science, Literature and Art, as the Phi Beta Kappa of Harvard College. As a rule, the sixteen or eighteen highest scholars of every class are chosen members of this Society; though others are added in after years, as they have become eminent as scholars or men of science. To belong to this Society is generally regarded as the highest honor of the college course.

The Porcellian Society dates from the year 1791. It was formed originally to commemorate the clandestine feast in one of the college rooms over a mysterious pig, whose voice was heard, but whose hiding place no prying scout could discover. Forty years later, it was joined by the Knights of the Round Table, another society of similar purpose and spirit. This purpose is rather convivial than literary, and the "Roast Pig" dinners of the Society are frequent. The number of members chosen from each class into this Society, is from eight to twelve, and these are usually chosen from those who have money to spend, and who love to spend it. The Society has fine rooms, handsomely furnished, a large and costly library, and many works of art. All its meetings are with closed doors and it has no public exercises. Many eminent public men have also been members of this Society.

A few years later in age is the Hasty Pudding Club. This was founded in the year 1795, by members of the class of 1797. One of the original members of the club, we think, the Honorable Horace Binney, of Philadelphia, still survives. The active members of this club are in the Junior and Senior classes. About one-third of the members of each class are chosen. They meet once in a fortnight, hear the records, which are in rhyme, listen to papers on various subjects, and close with a hasty pudding feast. The meetings were formerly in some room of one of the college dormitories; and the remnant of the feast was distributed to those of the lower classes, who happened to have rooms in the same entry. But now the Society have two rooms set apart for their use, in which their meetings are held, and in which they have their library of more than 4000 volumes. From time to time catalogues of the Society are published, and the list of members for seventy years and more is a long one. Some of the most eminent of American poets have written their earliest verses in the record-book of this club. The "Hasty Pudding" is a secret society, but the public are admitted to hear its annual Oration and Poem.

The Musical Society, the "Pierian Sodality," is now in its 60th year. To this have belonged nearly all the college men who have had skill upon the viol and the trumpet; and the gratuitous performances of this college orchestra have always been a chief attraction of the Exhibitions in May and October. The numbers of the Sodality are of course unequal in different years, varying from eight to thirty, according to the musical force in the college. Out of the Pierian Sodality has grown the Harvard Musical Association, whose winter concerts in Boston have given such development and popularity to classical music. The Glee Club, which often goes with the Sodality in the public performances, has had an intermittent life, but is now in a flourishing condition. The Pierian Sodality have rooms where they meet for practice, and have a large library of music.

The most valuable society in Harvard College as a working body, is unquestionably the Natural History Society. This was formed thirty years ago, and has gone on to the present time with uninterrupted prosperity. The cabinet and collections of the Society occupy four rooms on the ground floor of one of the buildings. The number of members is limited to 50, taken equally from the Senior and Junior classes. Frequent meetings are held and lectures are delivered not only by the immediate members of the society, but by eminent naturalists from other places.

In addition to the Societies here mentioned, the oldest of which is ninety-seven, and the youngest thirty years old, there are two or three religious societies, and two or three convivial societies of slight account. There is no large and free Literary Society for the purpose of practice in debate and composition, as there should be in an institution with 450 students in the college classes. Several attempts of this kind have been made, but they have always failed, and these societies have had a short life. The Faculty at Cambridge have never favored the multiplication of College Societies, though the names of nearly all of the Professors are enrolled on some of the Society catalogues. The societies that have been born and have died, leaving hardly a memory, are more numerous than those that survive. The I. O. H., the A. S. K., the Harvard Union, the Davy Club, the Rumford Society, the Harvard Washington Corps, the Navy Club, and above all, the Med Fac, whose wicked motto was "Satano duce, nil desperandum," were famous in their day, but are almost forgotten now.

Parting Song

OF '03.

BY RICHARD S. DEWEY.

---

- 1 Classmates! now, before we part,
Let strains that echo from the heart,
Unite our voices to proclaim,
Our loves, our hopes, for aye the same.

Chorus.—O, "Sixty Eight" for ever!
There's naught our class can sever:
Hand in hand, once more we vow,
Ever "Sixty Eight" as now.

- 2 Often, when in future years,
Thoughts of the past shall move to tears,
In those bright drops we'll consecrate,
The memory of "Sixty Eight."

Chorus.

- 3 Our college days have shown full well,
How pleasures often cares dispel,
Our studies done, our laurels won,
Stern duty oft' will yield to fun.

Chorus.

- 4 And now with cheers both loud and long,
We'll raise our final farewell song,
And heartily vociferate,
The praises of old "Sixty Eight."

Chorus.

Salutatio.

---

IN laying before its friends another volume of the PALLADIUM, the editors have sought for no attractive novelties, choosing rather that the publication should depend upon its own inherent merits, and believing from its past success that there is something in its character calculated to supply a natural demand among its patrons. They trust, also, that the frequent inquiries which their unavoidable delay in bringing it forward has occasioned, may be considered an indication that it is a not unwelcome visitor in the overcrowded family of college publications. It may not be out of place to state, for the benefit of those who see the PALLADIUM now for the first time, that it makes no pretension to entering into competition with any of the strictly literary periodicals of the University, but that it simply aims to present, in a compact form, a picture of the various societies and miscellaneous organizations contained in our midst.

To those outside of the charmed circle of college life, its pages may seem tedious and uninteresting, but its editors believe that they will be found to contain an amount of information in regard to the inner workings of the University which few of her students will care to be without. Although scarcely daring to anticipate that a work of such a character will be entirely free from errors, the editors trust that the care which they have expended upon its preparation has insured its general accuracy.

With this brief introduction the PALLADIUM will be allowed to speak for itself.

In Memoriam.

---

None of those who commenced the college year with us have been taken away by the hand of death. But one, an editor of the PALLADIUM only last year, was stricken down when his life-work had scarcely begun. ROSELLE N. JENNE died at Keokuk, Iowa, August 5, 1868. We mourn his loss, for he was a courteous and affable gentleman, and a critical scholar—one whom we all learned to respect and admire. We, who knew him well, can appreciate with what grief his relatives must mourn his untimely death, and though our hearts are sad, we can yet tender them our heartfelt sympathy for their deep affliction.

---

Again has the hand of the Destroyer removed one of our number. The death of BYRON A. CRANE, of the Class of 1869, has left a vacancy which will be deeply felt by his classmates and friends. He had been compelled, by reason of continued illness, to leave the University before the completion of his Junior Year. From that time until almost the day of his demise, he had appeared to be rapidly recovering; and it seems as but yesterday that he visited us with high hopes of regained health, which promised him strength to finish his collegiate education. It was the delusive expectation of the consumptive, and the disease finished its work on the 4th of February, 1869. While we mourn with heartfelt grief the untimely loss of one who had endeared himself to us by his generosity of heart and scholarly bearing, we will ever cherish his example and memory.

Class Song.

Air—"Benny Havens."

Come, classmates, raise your loudest strain,
In chorus full and strong;
And let the echoes once again
Repeat our joyous song.
Ring out, ring out your fullest shout!
Let mirth and joy combine,
To gild for aye the hallowed name
Of good old Sixty-nine,
Of good old Sixty-nine,
Of good old Sixty-nine,
To gild for aye the hallowed name
Of good old Sixty-nine.

We pledge her now with hearts of glee,
Though when in future years
We speak her name, the memory
Will blind our eyes with tears.
With wit and laughter as they pass,
Let fleeting moments shine
And every voice repeat the praise
Of noble Sixty-nine,
Of noble Sixty-nine,
Of noble Sixty-nine,
And every voice repeat the praise
Of noble Sixty-nine.

Where'er the sun of years to come
May light our toilsome way,
To her our minds will ever turn,
To her our thoughts will stray.
Around that honored title still,
Let holy mem'ries twine
And may our pulses ever thrill
At thoughts of Sixty-nine,
At thoughts of Sixty-nine,
At thoughts of Sixty-nine,
And may our pulses ever thrill
At thoughts of Sixty-nine.

Prize Song.

LET EVERY STUDENT FILL HIS BOWL.

RICHARD S. DEWEY.

AIR—"O landlord fill your flowing bowl."

I.

Ann Arbor is the jolliest town
This side the broad Atlantic,
And holds enough fine-looking youths
To drive the girls all frantic.
Freshmen so verdant—green,
Soph'mores of pompous mien,
Juniors, for fun so keen,
And Seniors so pedantic.

CHORUS—Let every student fill his bowl
With something, not too strong, sir,
And pledge our Alma Mater's health,
And join this jovial song, sir.
Ann Arbor is the place, you know,
To which our warmest feelings flow,
We'll love it still, where'er we go
And fate shall life prolong, sir.

II.

O, bright and happy are the days
We students spend at college
Endeav'ring in quite various ways
To store our minds with knowledge,
Wading through Geology,
Empirical Psychology,
And Plato's old Apology
For his outrageous conduct.

CHORUS—Let every student fill his bowl, etc.

III.

We ride upon our gallant steeds
Through tough examinations,
And on the stage we bravely spout
Magnificent orations.
We "cram" the odious "Syllabus,"
While Dr. Williams "Physics" us,
And Dr. Haven quizzes us
Upon ratiocinations.

CHORUS—Let every student fill his bowl, etc.

IV.

And while we've voices left to sing,
Or hearts to feel emotion,
Ann Arbor with our songs shall ring,
And deep and warm devotion
Round Alma Mater's sacred shrine
In graceful union shall entwine
The Laurel and the Ivy vine
Brought back o'er land and ocean.
CHORUS—Let every student fill his bowl, etc.

Salutatio.

IN laying before its friends and patrons this volume of the PALLADIUM its compilers extend the usual greetings. In a record such as this each succeeding volume must, in a large measure, be a repetition of those preceeding: nevertheless the purposes which this publication is designed to accomplish are met by no other college periodical. Showing, as its contents do, so much of the internal working of the University, of its organizations, of its social life, we believe they must contain matter of interest to both students and alumni. While many old features will be recognized, still a new one will here and there appear.

Relying upon the fundamental maxim that "to err is human, to forgive divine," we trust that our readers while glancing at the following pages, will endeavor to acknowledge the law of the one in seeking the perfection of the other.

Whilst the old year fades away into the new, we, throwing aside the mantle of sixty-nine, seek to present that which bears upon its title page the symbol of patient toil, of strong friendships, of perfect unity, SEVENTY.

Again greeting old friends, and cordially welcoming new ones, the twelfth volume is respectfully submitted.

Class Song.

BY EDWIN FLEMING.

AIR—Vive la Compagnie.

Come, classmates, we'll sing to a jolly old air,
Vive la Seventy;
A song that shall banish irrelevant care,
Vive la Seventy.

CHORUS. Vive la vive la vive la va,
Vive la vive la vive la va,
Vive la va, vive la va,
Vive la Seventy.

The present are moments of light-hearted joy,
Vive la Seventy;
And no thoughts of the Future their pleasure alloy,
Vive la Seventy.
CHORUS. Vive la, etc.

Soon the world with its hurry and bustle and heat,
Vive la Seventy;
We shall go from our college home bravely to meet,
Vive la Seventy.
CHORUS. Vive la, etc.

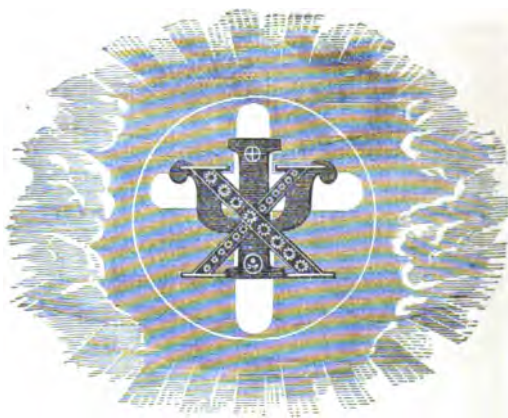

But the pleasures here tasted we'll treasure up long,
Vive la Seventy;
And their mem'ries we'll cherish in festival song,
Vive la Seventy.
CHORUS. Vive la, etc.

The joy-beaming eye and the jovial smile,
Vive la Seventy;
Betoken the thoughts that our spirits beguile,
Vive la Seventy.
CHORUS. Vive la, etc.

Then, fill to the brim every soul-cheering glass,
Vive la Seventy;
And drink to the health of our glorious class,
Vive la Seventy.
CHORUS. Vive la, etc.

UNIVERSITY SONG.

ARTHUR H. SNOW, '65.

AIR—Marseilles Hymn.

Come, jolly boys, and lift your voices,
Ring out, ring out one hearty song;
Praise her in whom each son rejoices,
And let the notes be loud and long;
'Tis Alma Mater wakes the spirit,
And prompts the strain of harmony;
O, sing to her triumphantly!
The glorious theme—do ye not hear it?

CHORUS. Hurrah! hurrah! ye sons,
By Alma Mater blest!
All hail! all hail! her honored name,
The Pride of all the West.

A thousand tongues, to swell the chorus,
Shall proudly join with us to-day,
While thousands more, who've gone before us,
Will gladly echo back the lay;
And many lands shall know the glory
That crowns the Brow of Michigan,
And greet the light in Learning's van,
The fair Ann Arbor, rich in story.

CHORUS. Hurrah, etc.

So, now our friends are hither turning
An anxious and expectant eye;
Are we, all base ambition spurning,
On fire with aspirations high?
Oh, earnestly the world is pleading
For men of strong and vallant soul;
Then let us strive for honor's goal,
Our country's youth in triumph leading.

CHORUS. Hurrah, etc.

By Alma Mater's precepts guided,
We'll boldly tread life's rugged way
Nor faint, nor falter, though derided,
Or foes our course should wish to stay;
And in our hearts shall perish never,
Our love for her whose halls we've trod;
Her praise we'll sing till 'neath the sod
Our voice is silent, and forever.

CHORUS. Hurrah, etc.
